

To whom it may Concern;

It has come to my attention that the NAB is lobbying to curtail the use of satellite radio.

As a subscriber i must point out that this new technology meets the needs of the traveling taxpayer which in no way is provided by the common broadcast media represented by the NAB. The clear reception in even the remotest parts of the country where standard broadcast is not available adds to its worth. The many channels allows choice on the part of the user makes its use even more important.

Unlike standard broadcast, it is a subscription service (like cable TV) consumers have the option to choose whether to use satellite and therefore it does not threaten standard broadcast any more than turning the dial to a different station would.

It is therefore recommended that the NAB request for restriction of satellite radio be refused.

Lawrence Cywin